Details

The Australian Red Cross was formed on the outbreak of the first World War in 1914 as a branch of the British Red Cross Society. The Australian Junior Red Cross, a subsidiary organisation to the Australian Red Cross, was formally established in New South Wales in 1918. The Junior Red Cross carried out a range of roles and services, including running children's Homes in New South Wales, Queensland, South Australia, Victoria, and Western Australia.

In South Australia, a number of Junior Red Cross Homes operated between 1933 and 1968.

In Western Australia, the Australian Red Cross took over management of Lady Lawley Cottage by the Sea in Cottesloe, in 1945. It continues to operate in 2020 as a respite care service for children with disabilities.

In Victoria, the Red Cross operated a number of convalescent Homes that housed children in Melbourne: Welfare House in St Kilda, Lady Dugan Home in Malvern and Edgecliff in Hampton.

In Queensland, the Red Cross ran the Margate Children's Home, which provided holiday care for the children of ex-service personnel, emergency care for children who's parents were receiving medical treatment, and also acted as a convalescent home for children from the Mater and Brisbane Hospitals. In 1945 the Queensland Division of Australian Red Cross proposed using the Walter T Robertson Convalescent Home as an additional holiday home for children of ex-service personnel if the number of applications exceeded Margate's capacity, however it does not appear that this home was ever required.
