

Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys

1921 – 1973

Other Names: • Glenara Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys

Details

The Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys opened in Glenara in 1921. Before 1946, most of the boys were state wards. After that, the Home also admitted them by private arrangement. In 1971, the name changed to Glenara Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys. It became Glenara Children's Home in 1973.

The Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys was located at Glenara, Franklin Village, which is near Launceston, in an eight roomed house set on 13 acres.

It was run by a non-denominational Management Committee.

The Home opened with 14 boys but had a capacity for 30. By 1922 there were 27 boys between the ages of four and twelve years old living at the home.

Frank and Anne Parkin were the first Superintendent and Matron of the Home. They were members of the Salvation Army with no experience of looking after children, apart from raising their own son and daughter. Before taking up their positions, they toured some mainland Homes to find out how they operated. By the end of the 1920s, the Parkins and the Committee were having major disagreements. At the heart of them, according to Daniel Smedley, was the Parkins' zealous approach to child saving, which the more moderate Committee opposed. The Parkins left in 1927.

The next appointments, Major and Mrs LGH Bradgate, were also inexperienced. The Committee sacked them in 1929 because the Major could not manage the boys. He may also have been an alcoholic.

Ivan and Daphne Filluel replaced the Bradgates. They had some experience, having taken over when the Bradgates were on leave in 1928. Smedley says that the management of the Home improved after that. The couple were still there in 1955 when Daphne Filluel received an MBE.

The Home provided entertainments for the boys. For instance, in 1925, they had a holiday at George Town. They also attended the Friendly Societies' Picnic, a sports event held when the British fleet visited, the National Agricultural Society's show, and the picnic held by the Church of England in Franklin Village. Sometimes there were joint outings with the girls from Launceston Girls' Home. The Annual Report commented that:

The Committee are grateful for the kindly interest taken in our boys in providing these outings which help to materially brighten their lives and teach them to appreciate what is being done for them.

From 1929 onwards, the boys had a holiday every year at Meercroft near the bluff in Devonport. They also played football and cricket, coached by Ivan Filleul.

In the 1920s, the boys attended Franklin Village State School and from the 1940s onwards, Youngtown State School. For further education, boys could study at the Technical College in Launceston. However, those with the ability to go on to the State High School were not allowed to sit the qualifying exam.

After leaving school, most of the boys found employment on farms. To prepare for it, they carried out work on the small farm at the Home after school hours. It produced milk, cream, eggs, vegetables and, at one time, meat from sheep and cattle.

This appears to have come at a cost. Former residents made claims to the 2003-4 Ombudsman's enquiry that they were forced to work excessively at all types of farming duties, including milking, and digging drains and ditches, in all weather, without footwear or protective clothing.

Annual Reports of the Home, published in the Annual Reports of successive child welfare departments, suggest that the Home slowly began to encourage the boys' studies. In 1941, one boy attended Warren's Business College, having been offered free tuition. In 1956, two attended Launceston High School. From 1967 onwards, the Home had tutors to help boys with their school work.

About this time, according to Anna Haebich and Doreen Mellor, one of the aims of the Home became providing a higher education for young Aboriginal people. In 1966, the Committee formed a sub-committee to bring them from Cape Barren Island to Launceston for further education.

In 1950, to provide temporary accommodation for the staff, Meercroft Hospital put up a house on the property where the boys had their holidays. A couple of years later, it became the property of the Home. In 1954-5, the dilapidated old dormitory was demolished and replaced with a new building.

This Home was an approved children's home under the terms of the Child Welfare Act 1960.

In the 1960s, the Superintendent introduced a holiday scheme for boys to stay with families instead of going to Devonport. This continued until the Home closed.

The Committee purchased a property at 56 Racecourse Crescent in 1954 to use as a hostel for boys who had left the Home and started an apprenticeship or other form of employment.

National Redress Scheme for people who have experienced institutional child sexual abuse

In 2021, the Tasmanian government has agreed to be a funder of last resort for this institution. This means that although the institution is now defunct, it is participating in the National Redress Scheme, and the government has agreed to pay the institution's share of costs of providing redress to a person (as long as the government is found to be equally responsible for the abuse a person experienced).

Gallery

Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys at Glenara - view from the front

Description: This photograph was taken on the opening day of the Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys. Weekly Courier, 22 December 1921, p. 23

Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys at Glenara - view from the back

Description: This photograph was taken on the opening day of the Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys. Weekly Courier, 22 December 1921, p. 23

More info

Chronology

- Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys (1921 – 1973)
 - Glenara Children's Home (1973 - 1982)
 - Glenara Training Services (1984 - c. 1995)

Related Entries

Related Organisations

- Launceston Girls' Home \(1921 - 1989\)
Joint outings were sometimes organised for the girls at Launceston Girls' Home and the boys at the Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys.
- St John's Park \(1936 - 1994\)
Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys sometimes sent children to St John's Park.

Related Places

- Cape Barren Island Reserve \(1881 - 1951\)
The Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys probably received children from Cape Barren Island Reserve.

Related Concepts

- Stolen Generations

Resources

- Ray Willis interviewed by Lyn McLeavy in the Bringing Them Home Oral History Project \(2000\), 12 June 2000
- Rimon, Wendy, Children's homes, The companion to Tasmanian history, 2005
- Childs, Terry, Franklin Village: an early Tasmanian town, 2005
- Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys, Memorandum and articles of association of the Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys, 1953
- Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys, The Nation's best asset; the Home for boys: on the doorstep to a new life - health, happiness and a chance ... Help the great work, 1945
- Home for Boys, The Mercury, 23 December 1933
- Smedley, Daniel, A Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys, Tasmanian Historical Research Association: papers and proceedings, March 1992
- Hanson, Dallas, Why are they in children's homes: report of the ACOSS children's home intake survey, 1979

Records

For more information and to access your records, follow the links below:

Records

- Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys Archival Collection, Queen Victoria Museum and Art Gallery \(1920 - 1996\)
 - Correspondence Files \(1919 - 1998\)
 - General Correspondence, Department of Public Health \(1920 - 1956\)
 - General Correspondence-Hospital and Health Administration \(1932 - 1987\)
 - Personal Files of Children who Lived at the Home, Northern Tasmanian Home for Boys \(1953 - 1982\)
 - Register of the Admission of 'Mental Defectives', New Town Infirmary \(1926 - 1965\)
 - Collection of Photographs \(1860 - 2006\)
 - [Correspondence files, single number series with 'B' \[Child Endowment\] prefix \(1904 - 1974\)](#)
-

You can view this page online by visiting <https://www.findandconnect.gov.au/entity/northern-tasmanian-home-for-boys/>