

Wingfield School

1942? – 1965?

Details

---

Wingfield School opened in the 1940s. It was for the children who lived at Wingfield House. Initially it was located between the Tasmanian Sanatorium and the Women's Division on the grounds of St John's Park, New Town. In 1957, it moved to two new classrooms built to the rear and east of Wingfield House. Wingfield School became Dalton School in the 1960s.

In January 1957, the Truth newspaper published an article complaining about conditions at Wingfield School. The exact nature of the complaints is not clear but a memo to the Minister for Education from the Minister for Health agreed with the article that the school was 'in a very untidy and dirty situation'. In addition, the School was some distance from Wingfield House and did not have a telephone, a situation that the Minister for Health later corrected.

In early April 1957, as a result of the complaint, John Edis, the Director General of Health Services, suggested that the children could go to schools off the St John's Park site. He said that six of the children living at Wingfield House did not need treatment, and therefore could attend an ordinary school. Of the 10 remaining children who did require treatment, another six could also attend an ordinary school. Those with intellectual disabilities could go to Talire, which was a government run special school. However, by the end of April, the government had decided to build the two classrooms using a 'light construction' nearer to Wingfield House. They would be connected by a covered walkway.

More info

---

Related Entries

Related Organisations

- St John's Park \(1936 - 1994\)
Wingfield School was at St John's Park.
- Talire School \(1950 - 1980?\)
In April 1957, the Director-General of Health Services suggested that children with intellectual disabilities, who attended Wingfield School, could go to Talire School instead.
- After Care School, New Town \(1942? - 1957?\)
Like the After Care School, Wingfield School was at St John's Park and provided schooling to children receiving treatment at Wingfield House. The children at the After Care School did not live at Wingfield House.

Records

---

Records

- Admission Register, Wingfield School \(1960 - 1973\)

- General Correspondence-Hospital and Health Administration \(1932 - 1987\)
  - Building Applications, Hobart City Council \(1919 - 1990\)
-

You can view this page online by visiting <https://www.findandconnect.gov.au/entity/wingfield-school/>