

Carrolup

1915 – 1922

Other Names: • Carrolup Native Settlement

Details

Carrolup was established in 1915 as a government-run 'native settlement'. The first Superintendent was from the Australian Aborigines Mission (AAM), which also provided volunteer staff. Aboriginal children were sent to Carrolup from different parts of the State. When Carrolup closed in June 1922, all residents were sent to the Moore River Native Settlement.

Carrolup was established during World War I as a 'government settlement' for Aboriginal people on a traditional camping ground on the banks of the Carrolup River outside Katanning. Some huts were built with materials salvaged from the Welshpool Reserve in Perth, and food shortages and hunger were common.

The Australian Aborigines Mission (AAM) was involved with Carrolup. Ethel and William John Fryer, previously from Dulhi Gunyah Orphanage in Victoria Park, were appointed by the government to manage Carrolup from 1915 to 1918. The Fryers continued at Carrolup after their association with the Australian Aborigines' Mission finished (around late 1917).

In 1916 it became apparent that staff were using corporal punishment against children at the Carrolup settlement. In response to this, Carrolup was ordered by the Department of the Chief Protector of Aborigines to keep a punishment book recording details about punishments used against children under 'Regulation 11', including their name, the reason for punishment, and the punishment inflicted. (This punishment book is now held at the State Records Office of Western Australia, in Series 2031 'Files (Aboriginal matters) – Chief Secretary's Department').

Prior to William Fryer's resignation as Superintendent in June 1918, an incident had been reported in the local paper about his brutal discipline at Carrolup:

In an action instigated by William Fryer against an Aboriginal man whom Fryer claimed had enticed young female resident from Carrolup, a story emerged that the girl had been chained by the neck to a bed from a Saturday to Monday to prevent her leaving the settlement. Fryer asserted that the chaining was not the reason the girl had left and that his actions were an attempt to follow instructions to prevent girls leaving the settlement only to return pregnant, or with a child. Longworth, p.200

No charges were laid against Fryer for this or other actions and he remained at Carrolup until John B. Blake was appointed to relieve him in August 1918. The AAM was no longer managing Carrolup, but its missionaries continued to work there.

A description of Carrolup by AAM missionary Edith Fisher in May 1918 reported that children transferred there from Dulhi Gunyah 'broke down' with homesickness, and that Nyungar adults 'lived in camps outside the fence'. Hope Malcolm arrived from the AAM in NSW to replace Fisher in 1920.

In June 1922 Carrolup was closed by the Fisheries Department, which had control of matters relating to Aboriginal people. All residents were sent to the Moore River Native Settlement.

Gallery

Stone Cottages, Carrolup Native Settlement, Western Australia

Description: This is an image of Carrolup in Western Australia. It shows a group of women and children standing in front of a large stone and brick cottage. Smaller timber buildings are visible in the background.

Soup kitchen [picture]

Description: 'Soup kitchen [picture]' is an image from A.O. Neville's album of photographs of Aboriginal missions in Western Australia, held by the State Library of Western Australia.

More info

Chronology

- Carrolup (1915 – 1922)
 - Carrolup Native Settlement (1939 - 1951)
 - Marribank Farm Training School (1951 - 1952)
 - Marribank (1952 - 1988)

Related Entries

Run by

- Department of Aborigines and Fisheries, State of Western Australia \(1 January 1909 - 1 January 1920\)
Date: 1915 - 1920
- Fisheries Department, State of Western Australia \(1920 - 1964\)
Date: 1920 - 1922

Related Organisations

- Dulhi Gunyah \(25 February 1909 - 1918\)
Children from Dulhi Gunyah were transferred to Carrolup.
- Australian Aborigines' Mission \(c. 1894 - 1929\)
Missionaries from the Australian Aborigines' Mission worked at Carrolup. Female missionaries were volunteers, but a male AAM Superintendent had a government salary.
- Moore River Native Settlement \(1918 - 1951\)
When Carrolup closed in 1922, all residents were sent to the Moore River Native Settlement.
Date: 1922 -

Resources

- [Interview with Isobel Bropho \[interviewed by R. Jamieson\]](#), 1989
- Interview with John Neville, by Anna Haebich, 1981
- [An early drink \[Australian Aborigines' Mission Report\]](#), The Daily News, 22 May 1918

Records

For more information and to access your records, follow the links below:

Records

- [Department of Aboriginal Affairs \[predecessors\], Records \(1886 - 2004\)](#)
 - [Files - Departmental \[Education Department\] \(1 January 1885 - 31 December 2000\)](#)
 - Files - Aborigines Departments \(1 January 1926 - 16 June 1972\)
 - Correspondence Files, Colonial Secretary's Office, Chief Secretary's Department \(1883 - 1983\)
 - Files \(Aboriginal matters\) - Chief Secretary's Department \(1916 - 1927\)
 - Personal Cards \(1920 - 1948\)
-

You can view this page online by visiting <https://www.findandconnect.gov.au/entity/carrolup/>