

Bureau for Disability Services

1991 – c. 1993

Details

The Bureau for Disability Services ('the Bureau') was established in 1991, reporting to the Minister for Community Services and Disability Services. The Bureau oversaw the provision of State funding for services provided by non-government organisations to people with physical disabilities. It also had a broad policy and development role such as providing the framework for State and Local government authorities' Disability Access and Inclusion Plans. After 1993, the Bureau and the Authority for Intellectually Handicapped Persons were dismantled and their functions were brought into the Disability Services Commission. The Bureau did not deliver out of home care.

More info

Chronology

- Bureau for Disability Services (1991 – c. 1993)
 - Disability Services Commission (1993 - current)

Related Entries

Related Organisations

- Authority for Intellectually Handicapped Persons \(1986 - 1993\)

The Bureau for Disability Services and the Authority for Intellectually Handicapped Persons merged after 1993 to become the Disability Services Commission.

Related Legislation

- Disability Services Act 1992, Western Australia \(1992 - 1993\)

The Bureau for Disability Services administered the Disability Services Act 1992.

You can view this page online by visiting <https://www.findandconnect.gov.au/entity/bureau-for-disability-services/>