

Kindra Cottage Home, Bassendean

1970 – 1975

Details

Kindra Cottage was a family group home established by the Salvation Army in Bassendean in late 1970. It provided accommodation for up to 8 children aged between approximately 7 and 14 years old, and was run by a married couple acting as 'cottage parents'. Kindra closed in 1975, following a decline in the number of children in residence, and difficulties in retaining couples to run the home. From 1976 the cottage was being used as an overflow facility for the Salvation Army's Graceville Centre.

More info

Related Entries

Run by

- The Salvation Army Australia Southern Territory \(1921 - 2018\)

Related Organisations

- Graceville Centre \(1903 - current\)

Following its closure, the Kindra cottage was used as an overflow facility for the Graceville Centre

Records

For more information and to access your records, follow the links below:

Records

- Files - Community Welfare \("A" Series\), State Records Office of Western Australia \(25 August 1908 - 23 December 1990\)

You can view this page online by visiting <https://www.findandconnect.gov.au/entity/kindra-cottage-home-bassendean/>